Rioting Halted Today As Ontario Prison Goes Through Week of Terror.

"No one is held hostage by prisoners here," said Smith. "The prison lights are quite all right, and all quiet this morning."

For the second time this week, climaxing the eighth day of turbulence and revolt, troop-laden motor lorries roared through the city and rifle shots echoed within the penitentiary, were rioting revived yesterday among mutinous convicts.

COMMITTEE ACTIVE

Former Governor's Program is Question

Efforts to obtain Former Governor A. Victor Donahey as the principal speaker at a mammoth Democratic rally here on Nov. 3 are being made by C. A. Leist, Pickaway-co Democratic leader, following a visit to party headquarters Columbus Thursday afternoon.

George G. Adkins and Clark E. Hunsicker accompanied Mr. Leist on his trip.

Recognizing the great ability of Donahey, not only as a speech-maker but as possessing more appeal than any recent party leader, Mr. Leist believes that Donahey's presence would fill Memorial Hall to capacity.

DEPENDS ON PROGRAM

Donahey's visit here depends upon his arranging his program to include Circleville, and upon his health which has not been good recently.

He has made several addresses through Ohio, including one at Washington C. H., and has been afforded a great reception wherever he has appeared. Pickaway-co always supported the Tuscarawas native when he ran for public office.

TANGEMAN TO COME

WHITE ASSAILS HIS OPPONENT

Claims Nomination Given To Highest Bidder; Says Ingalls Hand-picked.

TOLEDO, Oct. 21.—An attack on David S. Ingalls' campaign expenditures, coupled with a charge that he was "handpicked as candidate for governor by the Hoover administration," had been made here today by Governor George White in a campaign speech.

Assailing the Republican nominee's expenditure of $65,000 in the May primary, White said he will suggest amendment of the corrupt practices act "as to make it impossible for any rich families to purchase nominations or election to high office through inordinate expenditure of campaign funds."

White quoted from a recent campaign speech made personally by Ingalls in which he said, "If you will look at the records you will see that my primary campaign expenditures were contributed by my wife, my mother, my father and myself."

"The people of Ohio will not permit the governorship to be sold on the auction block," the governor said.

"The Hoover-Ingalls alliance was dramatized at Cleveland last week-end," he added, "when Mr. Hoover rushed to Ohio in an attempt to save Mr. Ingalls and at the same time to solicit the state's electoral vote for the national ticket."

The Socialist nominee, who was born in President Warren G. Harding's home town and once worked for him as a newsboy, advocated graduated governmental confiscation of wealth, by a scale ranging from five to 59 per cent, in an address before 5,000 persons at the state fairgrounds coliseum here.

President Herbert Hoover

IN CIRCLEVILLE

Saturday, Oct. 22nd

Train Will Arrive In Circleville at 2 P.M. Stopping at W. Main St. Crossing.

President Hoover Will Make A Short Address From Rear Platform of Car.

He Made Good On His Promises

Four years ago Herbert Hoover promised to work for agricultural relief and provide a farm cooperative marketing organization that would enable the farmers to market their own production.

That promise was kept and today there are thousands of farm cooperatives functioning successfully, and from which the farmer is profiting and will continue to profit much more in the future.

He promised tariff protection for farm products and kept that promise and the farmer is receiving from eight to eighteen cents a bushel more for wheat of the same grade than are the neighboring farmers across the Canadian border. That applies also to corn, to live stock and other farm products. While American prices are too low they are higher than the prices on the same products in ony other exporting country.

He promised protection for American industry and American wage-earners, and he kept that promise when he secured the passage of reasonable tariff schedules that are not exorbitant but prevented the dumping of merchandise made by cheap labor in impoverished Europe.

He promised reduction in the general operating costs of government. While extraordinary conditions have called for extraordinary expenditures to meet them, the regular operating costs have been reduced by half a billion dollars a year. He did that despite the continued opposition of a Democratic House of Representatives led by Democratic Vice-Presidential Candidate Garner.

He has continuously requested the Congress for authority to work out a reorganization of governmental departments, the elimination of those not essential to the Welfare of the people or that duplicate the work of other departments. A Democratic House of Representatives, led by Democratic Vice-Presidential Candidate Garner, has persistently refused such authority.

President Hoover has kept every promise he made the American people when he received their votes four years ago, and---

In addition to keeping his promises he has supplied a superb leadership for the nation during the most serious financial and industrial depression since the close of the Civil war; has met the situation squarely; has planned boldly but wisely for national recovery, and has set us again on a safe road to better conditions.

Knowing the re-election of Herbert Hoover means better prices for farm products, more jobs for the unemployed, less cost of government, quicker financial and industrial recovery, we urge the people of this community to cast their votes for a proven leader—

Premature Hallowe'en

ALL over the country police orders seem to be going out against premature celebrations of Hallowe'en. From the standpoint of irrepressible youth this may seem like tyrannical oppression. But tyrannical or otherwise, something of the sort seems necessary.

But is youth entirely responsible for the early celebration of this autumn festival of witchery and mystery? What can a healthy youth think when it sees windows aglow with masks, false faces, costumes, table decorations and other objects suggestive of the Hallowe'en season? It would be an odd boy indeed who with such stimulation did not begin to think of tick-tacks, chalked windows, corn-throwing and the more reckless phases of the celebration.

Of course this nation cannot become so paternalistic as to forbid the display of a merchant's goods and it cannot very effectively control the thinking of youth and so about all it can do is what it is doing, promise dire punishment for the lads and lassies who begin their Hallowe'en celebrations too far in advance of the day set for that purpose.

What, of course, is not clear to older minds is what fun the youngsters get out of a half-month's celebration of Hallowe'en. From recollections of childhood the old folks can readily understand how to pack a lot of fun into a night or two of revelry, but the idea of thinning it out over a week or more has little appeal for the elders, though apparently the young folks see it differently.

Unsung

JUST as many a rose is born to blush unseen, the world is forever producing public benefactors of whom society never learns though their benefactions may make life easier for millions in the routine affairs of the day.

There was Louis Perlman, Russian immigrant who died in New York City the other day at the age of 70 after a long and useful life. In this life he accomplished more than merely running man's allotted span of years, yet few persons ever heard of him.

His greatest benefaction was the demountable rim for automobile tires—a gift only the pioneer motorist can appreciate, although it is daily saving the time, temper and knuckles of countless motorists. His invention was one of the greatest single improvements in automobile construction since the introduction of the horseless buggy.

Changing a tire on the highway is a matter of but a few minutes and very little effort today, whereas before Perlman's invention it was often a half day's work. Riding home on a flat was preferable to changing tires in the "good old days" of motoring. That was before 1906.

The public that likes its news in pictures is also indebted to Perlman, who played an important part in the early promotion of picture service in the newspapers.

Auto Industry Is Ready

"I DON'T own a car."

That admission has a guilty ring, so guilty that it must be accompanied by explanations of defenses in this day and age when one out of every four Americans own a car and when no income is too small to deny that pride of possession.

This has been a poor automobile year compared with recent 12-month periods, but 1933 holds forth prospects of a satisfactory recovery. From present indications it will be a better year from production and sales standpoints.

Of all large industries the automobile industry will be the first to recover from the slump because it helps itself. It is now completing new models for the January and February automobile shows that will be irresistible in workmanship, design, performance and price. There is such a thing as making business, and this industry has made it a fine art.

The truth is that our mode of living is profoundly influenced in ever new ways by the cheap, fast, durable and now indispensable automobile. What was once a luxury has become a utility. The once common term, "pleasure car," no longer expresses the common attitude toward the automobile.

HEART STRINGS

SYNOPSIS

"Marriage is like reading a novel without suspense. No matter how charmed you may be at first with the words, a sustained effort demands little surprises, little moments of not knowing what's going to happen," Pamela Warren informed her lovely, young niece, Patricia Braithwait, as they basked in the Palm Beach sunshine. Eight years before the wealthy Pamela had married handsome Jimmie Warren, and, in spite of an overwhelming love, their marriage had palled. Pat is shocked to learn that her father has lost his fortune. Aunt Pam suggests that Pat insure her father's and her own future by marrying the wealthy, middle-aged Harvey Blaine, warning that the glamour of love wears off. Pat goes to an isolated spot, alone, to solve her problem.

"If you have blue devils," he remarked casually, "you need company."

CHAPTER TWO

Clouds like piles of new-ginned cotton banked in monstrous shapes against the deep blue, dissolved into white rags and reassembled as if the Great Scene Shifter had no plan, and must be forever rearranging His effects. Far out beyond the breakers a solitary swimmer appeared. Was lost but to reappear again. Patricia was neither curious nor alarmed by his proximity. He was but a part of the vast shifting scene, like the dissolving and reassembling clouds, the dropping and rising gulls; the waves themselves, which lingered but a moment, gave way, and returned in their febrile struggle.

The pagan parade of light and color folded in about her, detaching her from the world she lived in. . . . The sun mounted the meridian. The strong winds that warm the Florida winters and cool its summers, slowly withdrew, and all the wild and ardent green of the countryside drooped and grew still. The sea flattened, worn out by its tumult, turning inward upon itself to consume its own heart in opalescent fires. The sky shrank back from cloud remnants that were burned to white strings stretching taut across the blue. . . . Minutes, hours, eons dropped into the void of time for the girl sitting in lethargic abstraction on the sand.

Sharply, as if by some secretive convulsion of the hidden life of the deep, a man stood up out of the sea. Patricia sat still. A sudden familiarity about the lean, buoyant form wading toward the beach, arrested her. Someone from the hotel, no doubt. Reluctant to run away, yet anxious to avoid recognition, she began building sand castles in seeming absorption. . . . The bather passed her, some distance away. Disappeared. Was lost to her.

The years of her childhood unrolled before her—a thousand scenes in which her stately father had stepped out of his world of books and dreams into her world of childish activities. . . . He sat with her on the banks of the bayou back of the plantation, tying hunks of fat meat on strings to be cast out for crayfish to nibble, or, perhaps, swallow; whereupon would come an exciting moment. Red claws fanning the air. And always Daddy was as excited as she. . . . Together they plundered the spring woods for great armsful of white dogwood and fragrant pink honeysuckle. . . . In the Fall they tramped for miles, baskets on arms for hickory nuts and chinkapins, or flung stones and sticks into high pecan branches in the bottom field, bringing down a rain of pecans to be gathered. . . . Or again she would burst in on him: "Come quick, I've found a doodlebug hole." He would lay aside some weighty volume with every appearance of delight, and sit with her by the hour over the doodlebug hole assisting with the incantations that were supposed to charm, but never did, the doodlebug from his hiding place. . . .

He never failed me. Never put me off. Never put my enthusiasms to shame by a look of annoyance or want of interest. He was interested. Because I was his greatest interest. More to him than the quiet joys of his books and his own thoughts. And now it's my turn to take part in his affairs and make play for him——

Lighting a cigaret, she flung it away with a gesture of disgust.

"Is it as bad as that?" asked a voice at her side.

The bather whose tall form she had found so familiar, now in white flannel and soft shirt, dropped on the sand beside her. Reclining on one elbow, he stretched his long legs toward the tide.

Every line of his darkly fascinating face—eyes at once grave and suffused with gaiety, as if in their depths lay some subtile joyousness, even his long beautiful hands and easy grace—had at some time been flung imperishably upon her memory. Yet never before, she knew, had she heard the lazy laughing voice.

"If you have blue devils," he remarked casually, "you need company. I've found solitude the worst possible remedy for a sick mind."

"Your wisdom, I dare say, is absolute," she said stiffly.

He threw back his head and laughed with a boyishness that drew her eyes in spite of her. Then, surprisingly, before she had time to remove her indignant gaze, his face changed, all his gaiety snuffed out by a vast and mysterious melancholy. He turned to the sea, grave, meditative, sharply withdrawn within himself, lost in a measureless world to which she had no access, unaware of her astonished regard.

She felt small and humiliated. Like a child who furiously flings a cup of water at a burning house but to find it has fallen short of the outermost fringe of the blaze. But her resentment sank into a trembling feathery ash before the question in her mind: "Who is he? I ought to know. I do know."

Out of the corner of her eye she noted the fine embroidered monogram on his shirt sleeve—"J. L."—J. L.? The long fingers of his right hand were drawing blind patterns in the sand. Clean patterns, sure of line, the unconscious tracings of a trained hand. . . . Is he a famous artist whose pictured face I know? But that wouldn't account for the familiarity of gesture and changing expression.

He picked a small shell from the sand, crushed it and dropped its dust into his open palm, thereby revealing the most amazing hand she had ever seen. Slim, strong and flexible, smooth on the back, and perfectly manicured, the hand of an artist with a palm incredibly calloused. Every mound, almost to the tips of his fingers, like hard gristle, seamed and dry.

The men Patricia knew had hands as soft as her own, with, perhaps, a few callouses proudly earned with golf sticks, and proudly boasted. Here was the undoubted result of unceasing toil.

What was the meaning of a workman's palms in an artist's hands? Had he been born to great wealth and reduced to the most demeaning poverty? . . . But frightfully poor men don't wear tailored and monogramed shirts, and own expensive motor boats. . . .

After an appreciable space the lazy voice of the man went on: "Friends meet by the side of the road sometimes, speak together a moment and pass on, often perhaps never to meet again—and recollect each other for years. Others are introduced, and forgotten by the turn of a back. When I saw you sitting here, something said, 'there's a friend of yours in trouble, maybe you can help. . . .' So I came over and spoke to you. If I was mistaken—if you really want me to go——"

The Daily Horoscope

Friday, Oct. 21, 1932

Mingled good and bad planetary influences are discerned for today, according to astrology. It is a day in which both negative and positive forces are active.

In the morning hours financial matters can play a prominent part and register gain for those who take advantage of these friendly aspects. The morning is set for all social and business conditions. Those contemplating marriage as well as those engaged in artistic and intellectual pursuits, will profit today, it is foretold.

In the afternoon the negative forces have their sway and only matters of a routine character should be handled, according to the experience of the sages.

Those born from October 19th to 23rd, should practice poise and centration, especially during the remainder of this month and all of November, at which time Saturn, the planet of fate, is calculated by the seers to be in an adverse place to the Sun's position at the time of their birth.

Under this rule of the stars, some disturbance is threatened in the east, involving those in high political office.

Children born on this day probably will be frank, free, open and fearless. They should posses talent for inventions, and some real mechanical ability and skill in the manufacture of musical instruments. They are quite artistic in temperament and have a desire to please.

Samuel F. Smith, author of "My Country, Tis of Thee" was born on this date, 1808. Others who have celebrated it as a birthday include Samuel Taylor Coleridge, 1772, English poet and philosopher; Alfred Bernhard Noble, 1833, Swedish chemist and engineer.

Blood Count Only Way To Prove Pernicious Anemia

Many Mistake Ordinary Anemia for the Much More Serious Condition, of Which the Recent Discovery of Liver Treatment Now Makes Cure Possible.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

PERNICIOUS anemia was at one time a dreaded and fatal disease. Within recent years discovery of the curative value of liver has changed the prospect, for the use of liver and other important foods has helped to make possible the cure of pernicious anemia.

This is a disease of the blood, but its real cause has never been discovered. In this disorder there is a destruction of the red cells of the blood, and the blood becomes thin and watery. Not only is there a reduction in the number of red blood cells, but a loss of coloring matter as well.

The patients are pale in appearance, listless, and have no desire or ability to work. Though they may be extremely weak, there is no marked loss of weight. Swelling of the feet and shortness of breath upon slight exertion are common signs. Faintness and dizziness occur as the disease progresses.

As a rule, there are digestive disturbances which are frequently overlooked. Such symptoms as indigestion, "biliousness" and severe diarrhea are often definite signs of the trouble.

Pernicious anemia is misleading because it runs in cycles. The afflicted person improves greatly and for a short time may be decidedly better in health. This favorable state of health may last for several months, only to be followed by a relapse. As time goes on the periods of partial recovery become less frequent and of shorter duration.

The diagnosis of the disease is easily made by what is called the "blood count." In this test the actual destruction of the red blood cells and the decrease in the coloring matter can be determined. The condition may be confused with a more simple form of anemia. It is only by means of this test that the presence of pernicious anemia can be accurately determined.

For many years diet was believed to be the only means of curing pernicious anemia, and the diet was planned to increase meats and other proteins. Vegetables and milk were recommended, also strict control of the foods and complete rest in bed, but with little success in combatting this disorder.

Since the discovery that liver is of extreme value in the treatment of pernicious anemia, great strides have been made in its mastery. Liver has been found to multiply red blood cells four or five times, and in addition the general health of the individual has been decidedly improved within a period of from one to three months.

The Use of Liver

Fresh liver is often difficult to obtain. For it may be substituted certain recommended liver extracts. One of these is in the form of a powder that may be sprinkled over the food. Research is now being carried on in an effort to make a highly concentrated liver extract which can be injected into the tissues. When perfected, this method will be economical, easy to administer and more rapid in its action.

Never make your own diagnosis of anemia and certainly do not attempt to prescribe for yourself. Merely because you are pale and tire easily does not mean you are anemic. The diagnosis and treatment of this disease are highly technical and should only be undertaken by your physician, who is trained for this work.

WOMEN WIN VICTORY

PARIS—A great victory for the feminist cause in France has recently come by way of the Municipal Council of Paris, the most important legislative body outside of Parliament, which has declared itself unreservedly for the women's claims. The City Council unanimously adopted a resolution calling upon the Senate to vote universal suffrage for women having attained the age of 25, and at the same time making them eligible to sit in Parliament on the same conditions as the men.

RETURNS TO PRISON

PITTSBURGH—At his own request, Marco DiPietro, 42, a deserter from the United States Army of occupation in Germany, has been returned to Leavenworth federal penitentiary to serve out the remainder of a 20-year court martial sentence. Dipietro was released and asked to be returned because he had no job and no money to buy food.

BOYS TO FEED 1300 BABY-BEEF CALVES

Ohio 4-H Clubs Pool Their Orders To Send Buyers To Range Country.

Ohio 4-H clubs have pooled orders for 1300 head of calves which representatives of the clubs now in the range country of the southwest are purchasing. The calves are to be fed and fattened for market beef by the club members and sold within six to ten months.

The 4-H beef cattle clubs of a dozen counties entered the pool. Clubs of both Champaign and Clark counties ordered 200 calves each. Clinton and Logan counties each ordered 150 calves.

Shipment of the calves will be direct from the range country to the county centers, and all calves to each county will be selected for their uniformity of type. Selection is being made by L. P. McCann, animal husbandman at the Ohio State university, Frank Teegardin of the National Order Buying Co., Earle Reed, agricultural agent for the New York Central Railroad, and Ross Work, county agricultural agent for Logan co.

When the beef cattle are sold next fall, the 4-H clubs plan exhibits, the boy or girl who feeds out the best to receive a prize. The cattle, after being sold at auction, will be followed to market by the young club members who accompany them to study the mechanics of marketing livestock.

If the Hitlerites march and countermarch much more they will wear themselves out before the "big day."

MOVIES

AT THE CLIFTONA

Hair-raising feats, hand-to-hand encounters, treacherous pistol wielding and whirlwind riding instigated by a tense theme make for whiz-bang action in "Come On Danger," the first of a series of RKO Radio Tom Keene's starring Westerns coming to the Cliftona Theatre.

The picture relates the hazardous exploits of a Texas Ranger who undertakes to seek out and arrest a girl bandit leader accused of cattlerustling and murder of his own brother. He finds the girl, but is wounded in the attempt. She nurses him back to recovery, during which time he falls in love with her, making his duty of capture doubly distasteful.

"Come On Danger" provides the first featured role for Julie Haydon, an RKO contract player, who depicts the bandit leader. Miss Haydon, who made her screen debut in a bit role in "Is My Face Red" with Helen Twelvetrees, and Ricardo Vortez, comes from the legitimate stage, and brings her perfect radiance. She enhances every scene of action with Keene, and proves a promising screen luminary. Strangely, she bears a perfect resemblance to Ann Harding, an RKO star, so similar are her facial features, body carriage and other characteristics.

Rosco Ates, in the role of a fellow ranger, achieves a barrage of nonsense, laughs and guffaws in the picture. His stuttering is purported to have captured outbursts of merriment from preview audiences.

THE COMMON SPUD AND THE SWEETPOTATO

Vegetables, like people, can live down their early reputations. This is proved by no less an example than our commonplace but dependable aid to economy, The potato, the common "spud" of the army kitchen, which appears on the American table more often than any other vegetable. Potatoes are enjoyed democratically by all ranks and levels. They are served in the most expensive hotels, the cheapest lunch rooms, the wealthiest and the poorest homes. About four bushels a year per person is said to be the quantity the average American eats. Yet somebody once wrote that potatoes were "despised by rich and deemed only proper food for the meaner sort of persons."

Cultivation, skillful cookery, abundant potato crop and low prices have brought this staple commodity to its present popularity. And science backs up the popular taste, putting potatoes high in the list for nutritive value. To families on short rations, "use potatoes daily if you can," is good advice. Potatoes are one of the cheapest and most filling foods, and they furnish important nutrients besides.

Fortunately this is true both of the white or Irish potato, which is more abundant in the warmer southern areas, where the Irish potato is the smaller crop.

To anybody not a botanist or a food historian, the Irish potato is a most surprising vegetable. To begin with it is not Irish. It was discovered in South America by the Spaniards who followed Columbus, and the very word potato is of Spanish origin. The world's largest producers of potatoes are Russia and Germany. The United States, for all it own huge crop, is one of the largest importers, and we probably hold the world's record as consumers. Ireland, however, furnishes the common name, for there, once this South American plant was established in Europe, potatoes became almost the one food crop. Then, in the eighteen-forties, a blight destroyed the potato crop in Ireland, and a terrible famine occurred. It was this tragedy, no doubt, that fixed the name "Irish potatoes" for generations to come.

The sweetpotato, although its history and food value are so similar, has no botanical relationship to the Irish potato. The sweet potato is native to tropical America, and is said to have been discovered by Columbus himself. It was brought to North America and was being cultivated in Virginia by 1648 But its kinship is with the morning-glory, while the Irish potato belongs to the night shade family.

In food value, the difference between the two kinds of potatoes is chiefly the much greater sugar contains vitamins B and C, but the sweetpotato has more than the Irish potato and is rich also in vitamin A. Both retain, when baked or boiled in their skins, more of their vitamin content than do most other vegetables, and both furnish some food iron and other minerals—all of which become important because of the quanity of potatoes eaten by the average person.

In order to retain the most food value, nutritionists, dietitians, and doctors recommend baking or boiling or steaming as the best way to cook potatoes. Good cooks choose there methods for other reasons as well.

When it comes to table uses, however, the Irish potato and the sweetpotato have a different range of possibilities. For Irish potatoes the range covers soups, main vegetable dishes, and salads; sweetpotatoes are usually considered suitable only for main vegetable dishes and desserts.

After baked, boiled, or steamed potatoes, the good cook thinks of masked, fried creamed, or scalloped potatoes, potatoes au gratin, potatoes on the half shell shepherad's pie, hashed brown, O'Brein, or Lyonnoise potatoes. Fried potatoes, of course, may be the old-fashioned sliced raw potatoes fried in shallow fat, of they may be Saratoga chips, Frensh fried in thick strips, in balls, in curls, or in latticed form, or they may be the shoe-strings called Julienne potatoes, according to the way they are cut. All these are fried in deep fat.

The next meeting will be held on the regular meeting night, the third Friday in November, which is the 18th

Rev. Price of Harrisburg, gave a splendid address in high school assembly last Friday morning.

The ball teams journeyed to Darbyville last Friday and defeated both Muhlenberg teams rather decisively. The boys have won five games and lost none this fall, while the girls have won three and lost one. There will likely be no more baseball games this fall because of the uncertainty of the weather at this time of the year.

The end of the first six-weeks' period has arrived and the report cards with the grades for the first period thereon will have been received by the parents by the time this is read. If the work, as revealed by the grades received, is unsatisfactory, a consultation between parent and teacher now may avert a disastrous result at the end of the year.

A play will be given by the high school on Nov. 11, for the benefit of the athletic treasury. The comedy, "A Dutch Detective," has been selected and the cast is at work now getting ready for its presentation. For several reasons, most important of which is the fact that the receipts are not in proportion to the amount of work necessary to put it on, there will be no Hallowe'en carnival this fall.

MUHLENBERG-TWP SCHOOL NEWS

The last baseball game of the season was played with Derby on our grounds The Derby team defeated the Muhlenberg team 5-0. It was too much Erskine for the loyalites. The pitching of Erskine is unique insofar as he does things with a baseball that makes the batter look foolish. For Muhlenberg, Harvey Brigner stood out as both an offensive and a defensive weapon.

The girls' baseball team of Muhlenberg have played four games, losing all four. Our girls have shown constant improvement and we believe with the physical training that they shall receive during the basketball season, we will have a more successful team in the spring.

Gov. Roosevelt Leading 3 To 2 In 48 States' Poll

Roosevelt is leading Hoover by slightly over 3 to 2 in the fifth week's tabulation of The Literary Digest's nation-wide Presidential poll for which returns from all forty-eight States are reported in to-morrow's issue of the magazine.

A total of 2,617,185 ballots are tallied in the current returns. Governor Roosevelt receives 1,473,446 of these, or 56.30 per cent. and President Hoover get 973,367, or 37.19 per cent. The balance is divided among the five minor candidates with Norman Thomas receiving 4.86 per cent of the total vote cast.

The ten new States reported in this week's compilation include Florida, Maryland, Minnesota, Missouri, North Carolina, Oklahoma, Texas, Virginia, Washington and Wyoming. All are voting for Roosevelt.

Hoover is carrying the seven States of Maine, Vermont, New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut and New Jersey. Roosevelt is ahead in all of the forty-one other States.

On the basis of an Electoral College vote a division of the current balloting would give Roosevelt 474 electoral votes to Hoover's 57.

The voting in New York is closer than in any other State, making the outcome here doubtful at this time. Roosevelt is polling 159,428 votes to Hoover's 148,796

A close race is also evident in Delaware, where Roosevelt has a plurality of only 202 votes out of a total of 5,682 cast in the State

Hoover made slight gains in the poll during the week in California and Rhode Island. The voting in all of the other 36 States previously reported has changed only fractionally since the last report. The balloting from the ten States for which first figures are reported furnish the bulk of the lead which Roosevelt gains this week.

The returns from "State Unknown" divide 59.47 per cent for Roosevelt and 33.60 per cent for Hoover, which is slightly in excess of the Democratic candidate's ratio for the country as a whole.

The polling of the District of Columbia, which has no official election, shows Roosevelt receiving 4,754 votes to Hoover's 3,577.

In an anaylsis of "how the same voters voted in 1928" it is indicated that Roosevelt is receiving 37.05 per cent of his strength from former Republicans, 47.98 per cent from Democrats, and 14.81 per cent from those who did not vote four years ago. The same analysis reveals that Hoover is obtaining 80.59 per cent of his votes from former Republican ranks, 6.11 per cent from the Democrats and 13.25 per cent from those who did not vote at the last quadrennial election.

It is indicated also that Roosevelt is obtaining more votes from former Republicans than from members of his own party in the twelve States of California, Iowa, Kansas, Michigan, Nevada, North Dakota, Oregon, Pennsylvania, South Dakota, Washington, Wisconsin and Wyoming, while in Illinois the division is almost even.

Hoover rolls up his largest lead in Massachusetts, where he is ahead of his Democratic rival by a vote of 51,739 to 23,712. Of the seven States which the President is now carrying New Jersey is giving him the smallest percentage ratio. The vote in this State is 63,175 to 53,409 for the Republican candidate.

Governor Roosevelt has a clear majority in thirty-nine States in the voting this week

The Socialist ratio in the poll has declined from 6.28 per cent in the first week's returns to 4.86 of the total of the current tabulation. All of the other minor candidates are polling less than 1 per cent each of the total vote.

Clamor For Contest Of Ohio State, Ohio U. Loud

Scores of Two Teams Compared; St. John Says Nothing Doing.

COLUMBUS, Oct. 21.—This is the invigorating time of year when chests swell at Athens, and a tremendous hue and cry is raised about the scheduling of a football game—a battle of the century, if the truth came out—between Ohio State and Ohio University.

This is also, if memory serves, the time of year for nutting parties, which is another excellent combative sport, and one about as likely to be jointly engaged in by the Bobcats and the Buckeyes, unless there is a change in the attitude of officials of the two schools.

COMPARE SHOWINGS

But there may be a change, at that, for the Ohio U. rooters are becoming especially dogmatic on the subject, especially when they get to comparing the showings of the two teams thus far this season.

The theory they are citing, according to authenticated reports, was swiped from politics. It is an old friend—"Let the public be served"—and although Commodore Vanderbilt once said "The public be——" and escaped injuries, there is a different spirit abroad on these fine fall afternoons of October, 1932.

Ohio U. and Ohio State officials for the past several seasons seem to have been equally indifferent about their teams getting together.

But now, Ohio U., emerging from the obscurity of the Buckeye conference like Centre came out of the hills of Kentucky several seasons ago; went to Annapolis last week, and upset the Navy, 14 to 0.

ONE POINT DIFFERENCE

Moreover, the Bobcats, in a game against Indiana, were defeated by a 7 to 6 score early this season, and Ohio State, playing the same club a short time later, was held to a 7 to 7 tie.

The Middies are a type of competition which Ohio State holds in comparative respect and the Hoosiers certainly are not regarded without awe by the Buckeyes, especially this year.

Why these two teams have not met before in modern history nobody quite seems to remember, although it is of course a fact that Ohio State's schedule is manped out far, far ahead, due to its Western conference connections.

WILLAMAN WILLING

Coach Sam Willaman of Ohio State was quoted as saying last year in a speech that the Buckeyes had offered or were willing to play Ohio U. His statement supposedly was in answer to a charge by Ohio U. enthusiasts that Ohio U. couldn't get a game with State.

In fact, however, one school, officially, appears to have been as indifferent about such a game, as the others.

Athletic Director L. W. St. John of Ohio State assured this writer a few days ago that nothing has been said about an Ohio U.-Ohio State game for next year, and that nothing could be done about it if anything were said, due to schedules already arranged.

The clamor, however, continues, louder than before.

Most Valuable Diamond Stars

To the City of Brotherly Love goes the honor of producing the two most valuable baseball players of the 1932 season, according to the judging committee of the American Baseball Writers' Association. They are Jimmy Foxx (left), first baseman of the Philadelphia Athletics, who was adjudged the most valuable in the American League, with a total of 75 points out of 80, and Chuck Klein, who patrols the right field for Philadelphia, was given the corresponding honor in the National League with a score of 78 points out of 80. Lou Gehrig, of the New York Yankees, was second to Foxx and Lon Warneke, of the Chicago Cubs, was runner-up to Klein.

DUTCH CLARK BEST IN LOOP

Portsmouth Quarterback Leads In Several Departments of Pro League.

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—Earl (Dutch) Clark, former University of Colorado quarterback now with Portsmouth, is establishing himself as the best all-around back of the National Football League according to the weekly figures compiled today by the circuit.

Clark is among the leaders in running the ball, kicking, passing and has booted the only field goal kicked in the National League this season. He stands fourth among the ground gainers with 193 yards and has averaged better than three yards each time he took the ball.

The best ground gainer is still Jack Grossman, newcomer on the Brooklyn Dodgers, who although held to 26 yards by the New York Giants has a total of 230 yards with an average of 4⅓. The veterans are beginning to cut down his lead however. Bronko Nagurski by clipping off 88 yards for the Bears against the Packers now has 208 yards and an average of 6½ yards each crack at the line. Ken Strong, Stapleton's flashy performer, is very much in the running with 195 yards.

Clark and Benny Friedman are staging a duel for passing honors with Friedman having a slight edge so far by completing nine in 26 for 118 yards with only three intercepted. Clark has made good on 11 in 35 for 159 yards but had six intercepted. Clark has averaged 42 yards in punting.

Harry Ebding, former St. Mary's end now with Portsmouth, has the best pass catching record with 12 completed for a gain of 119 yards. Paul Riblett, new Dodger end, has been a sensation in two games completing six for 95 yards, one for a touchdown.

SPARTANS WIN

Long runs by Dutch Clark and John Cavosie aided Portsmouth Spartans to defeat Stapleton Thursday evening by a 13-6 score.

Clark's run was 72 yards through tackle and Cavosie's 40 yards on an intercepted forward pass.

Ken Strong made Stapleton's touchdown around end.

BUCKS ON WAY

COLUMBUS, Oct. 21.—With campus enthusiasm so low that a cheer rally for the athletes was cancelled, Ohio State's football team departed for Pittsburgh today on a gloomy trip which is expected to end in another gridiron defeat for the Buckeyes tomorrow.

Coach Sam Willaman and a squad of 41 players left at 7:55 a. m., unaccompanied by hurrahing or cheering. A send-off for the team was to have been held last night but because of the general dejection, following the Michigan defeat, it was called off.

Willaman and his athletes saw reason to hope for victory over Pitt, notwithstanding the low state of football sentiment on the campus.

For one reason, it was reported that Carl Cramer, Buckeye quarterback, who was to have been benched, would after all be in the game at the start. Coach Willaman had a change of heart in practice yesterday and gave Cramer most of the quarterback duties.

Marshall Oliphant, the sensational sub who was expected to start at quarterback, probably will sit on the bench. Willaman believes that Cramer, who was a great star last year, has recovered his confidence.

The probable starting Ohio State lineup, as it looked today is:

Salvaterra and Gillman, ends; Conrad and Monahan, tackles; Gailus and Verner, guards; R. Smith, center; Cramer, quarterback; Carroll and Hinchman, halfbacks, and Vuchinich, fullback.

SCHEDULE GOOD

COLUMBUS, Oct. 21.—Ohio's week-end schedule, which will be headed by a clash tomorrow between Ohio University and Miami, will be opened tonight with three games played under lights.

Washington and Jefferson plays at Xavier, Georgetown plays at Wittenberg and Marshall invades Dayton in tonight's collegiate games.

Ohio U. tomorrow will show whether it has any chance of winning the Buckeye conference title for the fourth straight season.

Muskingum, with a strong team, will play Heidelberg in a game of interest to the Ohio conference; Mt. Union will go to John Carroll, Oberlin to Western Reserve, Denison to Cincinnati, Marietta to Toledo, Otterbein to Capital, Ashland to Baldwin-Wallace, Hiram to Ohio Northern, Kent to Akron, and Defiance to Bowling Green in other games in the state.

Ohio Wesleyan will play DePauw at Greencastle, Ind.

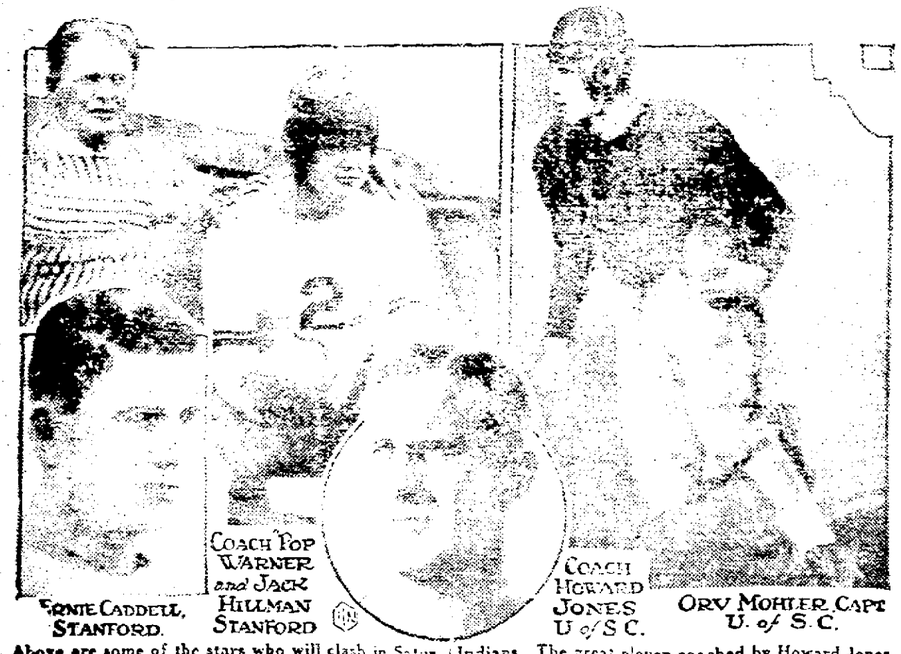
STAR GRADUATES

NEW YORK Oct. 21.—"Jumbo" Marino, one-time professional burglar, today became a professional football player.

"Jumbo," who graduated from Sing Sing prison this week after starring on the prisoners eleven is to join the Patterson, N. J. Night Hawks of the eastern league. Johnny Law, former Notre Dame captain, aided him in landing the berth.

He was sentenced to Sing Sing for three years for burglary.

They Will Meet in Pacific Coast Classic



Above are some of the stars who will clash in Saturday's big game on the Pacific Coast—the annual meeting of Southern California and Stanford. The ancient rivals, both unbeaten thus far, will meet at Palo Alto and the Trojans have high hopes of repeating their last year 19-0 victory over "Pop" Warner's Stanford Indians. The great eleven coached by Howard Jones has not even been scored on this season while Warner's aggregation permitted only one touchdown in five games. Only Stanford stands in Southern California's otherwise clear road to another Pacific Coast championship and possible national title.

About This And That

BY THE SECOND GUESSER

THE Tigers were at Marysville this afternoon where a hard Central Buckeye league football tilt was scheduled. The squad was reported in good condition and has high hopes of returning the victor. Members of the team left the high school at noon in private automobiles.

The best game of the league today should be Grandview at Delaware with Bexley going to Westerville for a set-up.

Just how a Columbus sports writer can figure Ohio State university a favorite to defeat Pittsburgh by a 14-6 score is beyond the machinations of Amos Pumpernickel who does the prognosticating for this column. If the Scarlet and Gray catches up with Heller and Reider all afternoon 'twill be a pleasant surprise * * * But the Buckeyes are desperate after their whipping a week ago—so we'll pick Pittsburgh by the same score.

Ohio Wesleyan should defeat DePauw three touchdowns and Ohio U. will have a battle on its hands to defeat Miami 20-6 * * * What of Northwestern and Purdue, says you? It ought to be a good contest with Rentner breaking loose at least once and Purdue scoring twice * * * Just for fun say 14-13 Purdue. No more predictions, maybe that's too darn many now, says Amos.

The word's going around that the Circleville Athletic club will play three basketball games this winter, one on Thanksgiving, another on Christmas and a third on New Year's. * * * Then, too, it's certain that the county basketball tourney will be held in the C. A. C. gym again this year. * * * Wonder what the chances are of the Circleville high school playing its home games on the C. A. C. court. * * * We're in favor of it, and heartily.

Be careful Notre Dame foes—Coach Hunk Anderson says, "We're going to beat everyone by just as large scores as we possibly can" * * * I learned enough about defensive football last year and we lost two games" * * * Notre Dame will be pressed in three contests this year. Pittsburgh, Army and Southern California with the former probably being the climax of the grid season.

Ernest Smith, Editor of the Greenville (Miss.) Democrat-Times, says:

THAT no business can exist without new customers. That business can be stores, churches, lodges, lawyers, doctors, or whatever vocation that may be undertaken.

New customers respond to the proper kind of invitation and old customers feel that they are more welcome when the invitation is properly presented through the columns of the newspaper.

We have one large merchant in this city who isn't interested in advertising, except to keep his name before the public, when business is good. But when business got dull! Oh, Boy! He took plenty of space and is going to pay income tax this year. He found dollars in places that other merchants "never stopped to think" existed.

SKIPPER FACES TRIAL

CHERBOURGH — Lieutenant Comte Pol du Mesnil, commander of the French submarine Prometheus which sank off Cherbourg with a loss of more than sixty lives is to be court-martialed. It is pointed out, however, that this infers no blame on the commander since the French code of maritime law demands court-martial of every sailor to lose his ship.

JOY WALKS

BY LESLIE L. PONTIUS.

Do you remember those glorious summer sunrises? Remember how the gray dawn changed to pink, red and rose zircon—how the blue of the sky blended with yellow of the sun and cast a soft pastel green just above the horizon—how the haze disappeared and the landscape became brilliant and beautiful clothed in living green?

Do you remember those burnished yellows of the noonday sun? Remember how you shaded your eyes to protect them from their golden brilliancy?

Do you remember those gorgeous sunsets? Remember how the yellow deepened to orange— now the red deepened to crimson—how the blue changed to violet, then purple, then indigo—how the green of the vegetation changed to black as the darkness deepened?

Do you remember how the celestial, enchanting, pellucid harvest moon rose above the eastern horizon and changed the sun's afterglow into a mellow topaz?

All summer long has the foliage of the trees and shrubs been gathering those colors and hiding them under a mantle of green, and now that their work is done, before parting from the twigs that bore them, they have thrown off their green canopy and those gorgeous colors shine with all the brilliancy of fresh paint, a delight to the eye and an inspiration to the soul.

Edward Sinclair Thomas, naturalist, of Columbus, couldn't resist the call of the colors, so down he came and brought with him, Stanley Brumley, a New England entomologist, who is at present studying Ohio's robber flies. He wanted to show him Ohio's hills in color and to learn from him how they compared to the Berkshire Hills of his own home state. All he could or did say was, "They are beautiful! The only difference I can see is, that our hills have more pines and hemlocks on them, making a greater contrast."

Floyd Bartley and I accompanied them and after stopping for a short time to explore a marsh, in which Bartley found several rare plants and Thomas found a rare marsh cricket, we finally parked our car by the side of the road where we had a commanding view and ate our lunch, all the time revelling in Nature's cyclorama of polychromed hills.

The most outstanding colors were the reds, scarlets, orange, yellows, and pinks of the sugar maples.

I always did admire the sugar maples and love them from the time when I was a small boy and used to bore holes in them with an old rusty auger, and then drive into the hole a spigot made from the stalk of an elder, so that the sweet sap could flow from the wound and drop into a bucket. Sugar water! Oh Boy!

Even now I think they are the greatest of all our trees I admire their aggressiveness and sturdiness. They allow no other tree to grow taller and crowd them out. They scatter their seeds so that in case anything should happen to send the crashing to the earth, they have an offspring to take their place in the sun.

If you haven't seen those colors, go before it is too late. In the winter when the days are cold and dreary and you are despondent and restless, just close your eyes and think of those gorgeous colors and in your mind, dance again with the fairies and sylvan elves, a panacea for all ills.

PROWLER KILLED

KENTON, Oct. 21.— Matching shot for shot, John Zercher, 48, today shot and killed a prowler, identified as Norman Buchanan, 26, of Kenton, at his home.

Zercher told police he found Buchanan hiding in his garage. Ordered to "stick 'm up," Zercher whipped out his revolver instead and fired two shots. Buchanan fired once and then ran around the garage where he fell, fatally wounded with a bullet in his right lung.

A verdict of justifiable homicide was returned by Coroner F. M. Elliott.

OHIO SCHOOLS

ber election all schools there will have to close.

Teachers in Mingo Junction received only 40 per cent of their May salary and there is no money to pay them for September or October work, according to reports Due to the reduction in the tax duplicate, London, county seat of Madison-co, has no money for schools and less in sight.

Marion has no hope of more than eight months' school and yet it has an increased enrollment.

AID TOO SMALL

The state aid fund is not large enough to meet the present emergency, according to Joseph Fichter, assistant director of the state Department of Education. Fichter said the number of applications for state aid has increased from 700 to 800. He added that doubt was held if the state aid fund could meet the demands for the entire school year.

A "breakdown of the present antiquated" system of financing the public schools of the state was blamed by Fichter.

"Some form of indirect taxation must be found or our schools are going to be set back a generation or more," George A. Bowman, chairman of the Ohio Education Association special committee, declared today.

"Support for public education must be put on a more definite and permanent basis," he said "We are convinced that the state as a whole should assume a larger share of the support of education and that any program proposed must provide for property tax relief."

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—Nettled by Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt's charges of "fiscal mismanagement" in national finance, President Hoover worked today on a speech which his advisers said would constitute a blistering reply to the Democratic candidate. It will be delivered tomorrow night in Detroit.

CARRY ON ATTACK

In his Cleveland speech last week Mr. Hoover for the first time assailed Gov. Roosevelt's policies, and in his Detroit speech tomorrow night it is understood he will carry this attack even further.

In the preparation of his speech, Mr. Hoover has had the assistance of Secretary of the Treasury Ogden L. Mills and State Senator George R. Fearon, Republican leader of the Senate in New York. Both are familiar with the finances of New York state, and have given the President a veritable arsenal of ammunition to use against the Roosevelt administration at Albany.

WOMEN HEAR DEAN DUTTON

Inspiring Address Made At United Brethren Church; To Make Others.

Addressing women and girls of the city Thursday evening at the United Brethren church, Dean C. Dutton, Ph. D, who is conducting Youth Week here in cooperation with the Kiwanis and Rotary clubs, will speak to men and boys at the First Methodist Church at 7:45 p. m. today on "The Glory of Towering, Clean Manhood."

Dean Dutton addressed a gathering Friday afternoon at St. Philip's Episcopal parish house on "Radiance and Power in Personality."

"The Sacredness of Beautiful Womanhood" was Dean Dutton's subject Thursday evening.

He said that women and girls of the United States are divided into two groups; those who are professional, making their way in the world in the different arts and sciences, and those who are wives and mothers.

"Womancraft,' he said, "is as sacred as prayer."

He drew pictures of the life of a girl up to the age of womanhood and brought out clearly the wonderful opportunity of the true mother to train and develop the soul of the girl which he said is the finest thing, "The last touch of the Creator's hand."

"A woman's soul," he said, "is the most delicate, the finest, the most exquisite thing God ever made, because he meant it for motherhood, that realm in which women alone stand apart and which a true man worships and respects."

He cautioned the young girls present in the choice of life mates and how rightly to judge the true character of a lover. He interspersed his talk with many tender illustrations that brought the lesson home in a way not soon forgotten.

He also had a lesson for the older women He said the woman's most enjoyable part of life, her richest experiences, come after she is fifty .

He pointed out the way that one could develop herself, how to be a blessing to herself and others.

Dr. Dutton's Saturday night address will be at the Evangelical church at 7:45 o'clock when he will discuss "Masterful Engineering."
